Razing of Mokena's Rock Island Depot Is Now Complete

It's too late now for those who didn't get a last look at Mokena's old depot site to see the remains. Tuesday morning a crew of workmen for Rock Island came, together with a steam shovel, loaded of dirt, and started to work. In a short time the "hole" left after the tearing down of the old depot was just another flat piece of ground.

Whether the railroad company plans to make this into a parking lot or a small park to beautify Front street was not learned at the time of going to press.

OPEN HOUSE OF BREEDING CO-OP

Sunday, June 19 has been reserved for South Cook county farmers to attend an Open House at the Bull Barn of the Northern Illinois Breeding Co-op, according to information received from John H. Brock, business manager.

So that technicians for the Co-op may attend the Open House with farmers from their area, breeding service will not be available.

Attendance at the open house will give Cook county farmers an opportunity to inspect the outstanding Holstein, Guernsey, Brown Swiss, and Jersey Sires that are in service. The daughters of these sires in herds of co-operators have the highest average production as far as is known of any group of cows sired by bulls used in artificial breeding.

There will also be a program where the accomplishments of this breeding service over the past nine years will be discussed. Farmers who have been using this service have found that their heifers show an improvement in production, type and udders and have greater value as a result of this constructive breeding program.

The 31 counties being serviced by the Co-op have been divided into four groups to make it easier for all farmers in attendance to get the most out of their meeting. However, if it is impossible for a Cook County farmer to attend on the date, it is suggested he plan to attend one of the other three Sundays in June as all four Sundays have been reserved for Open House delegations.

The Bull Barn is located on Route 20 about 7 miles northwest of Elgin or 1 1/2 miles southeast of the junction of Routes 20 and 47.

The Will County Farm Bureau played host last Friday and Saturday to editors and radio operators of Will county at their annual field day trip to the University of Illinois College of Agriculture at Champaign. The purpose of the trip was to investigate the College's far-flung research program.

Representing the Semmler Newspapers were, Raymond Westlund and Stanley Brown, others from Will county were, C. H. Peterson, publisher of the Farmers Weekly Review; Lee Russell of the Peotone Vedette and Dan Albrecht of the Joliet Herald-News. These were joined by many other representatives from the state.

During the two days, they were given an up to the minute report on the latest research results in weed and insect pest control. New chemicals developed during the past few years have revolutionized the control measures for flies, corn borers, grasshoppers, etc. They watched four airplanes demonstrate chemical spraying from the air.

In the livestock pavilion, they saw the results of feeding chickens "high energy" rations for faster gains at less cost. They examined hogs that were being fed on "synthetic milk," and learned more about the why and how of building more efficient swine rations. As yet, the "synthetic milk" feeding is not practical because of the prohibitive cost.

Especially interesting was the cow with a hole in her side. This was possible by way of an operation, and had a leather tube attached to make the tests to find out what makes Bossy "tick." Bossy seemed very comfortable and content and didn't seem to mind when her stomach contents were sampled and analyzed.

A banquet was given Friday evening in the Union building.

A visit to the "Better Living in the Home" exhibit, showed examples of farmstead layouts, home building and remodeling, kitchen arrangements, etc.

Westlund and Brown agree that it was a trip well worth taking and that Wayne Churchill, Will county farm advisor and Herman Johnson, Farm Bureau organization director, were the perfect and congenial hosts.

GRIDDERS ARE SITTERS

Lou Little, famous Columbia football coach, has appealed for jobs for football players as baby sitters. "It is no gag," he says. "I will personally guarantee that any of my players will prove 100 per cent dependable."

So there, Junior! Behave yourself while mommy and poppy are at the theater tonight or else develop some fast off-tackle plays.

Reactions to football players as baby sitters have been varied. At first thought, many parents had difficulty associating "Rock-a-bye Baby" and "Sleep, Pretty One, Sleep" with "Block that kick!" and "Hit that line hard!" They found it hard to think of a husky fullback as the best person to handle kids who made up their own rules as the evening went along.

It did not seem to mother that when she asked, "Do you think the baby is all right?" she would find comfort in father's answer, "Yes, my dear. Remember that our baby sitter for tonight booted the longest punt in the 1948 season!"

But on more sober reflection most people decided that, children being the problems they are when mom and pop are out, it might be reassuring to know that they are in the hands of a baby sitter coached in a rugged school and with a good record for victory, on fields wet or dry.

Kids are quick to recognize authority. They know when they are up against heavy odds. In the manner and actions of a university grid star, they sense power, speed, determination and the old "do or die" spirit.

Few children will try to sit up until midnight listening to the radio if the baby sitter is all-American material.

Baby is not going to whip out the airgun around 9:30 and take some pot shots at the old woman across the courtyard, knowing that a great broken field runner is on watch.

No kid is going to howl for a cookie if it can see in the eyes of the baby sitter the never-yeild-an-inch spirit of a football man around whose end no opponent made any progress in two seasons.

All in all, parents should feel easy with a football star as a baby sitter. Even in a home where the kiddies are sure to get rambunctious a crack gridiron man can detect the signals, sense the trick plays and stop the formations. Unless, of course, he is in one of those homes where there are so many children they use the double platoon system.

Why Fans Go Mad

These days in the video belts where baseball games and horse races are broadcast the same afternoon are proving pretty hectic to sports fans. Trying to follow both is doing the American nervous system no good. We found ourselves shouting, "Slide ya big bum!" at a horse the other day and yelling, "Stop pullin' his head off," at a ballplayer.

It is all quite confusing. To see both sports, a video addict has to be pretty fast on the switches. In a stirring ball game it is quite a trick tuning out at the proper moment to catch the horses all set in the starting gate. And in an especially important horse race split-second judgment is necessary in deciding when to tune out of the horse oval and into the ball park.

We were watching Elmer Twitchell in such an ordeal recently. The ball game was well under way when it came time for the ponies. It was a tie score. Elmer struggled to keep away from the race broadcast, but couldn't do it. He suddenly switched into the horse channel. The skimmers were being saddled in the paddock. Elmer missed one entry. "They must have benched him!" he observed.

He liked a horse on which Arcaro was announced as the jockey. "Arcaro!" he exclaimed. "That's poor judgment. They pitched him yesterday."

Then while the race track announcer was chatting on generalities, Elmer dove back into the baseball channel. The home team had a man on second, one out and a big hitter up. It added to his pulse beat and general confusion. "Come on!" he yelled. "Don't go wide on the turns. Ya can't lose at the weights!"

Back to the ponies he switched, just in time. The horses broke as one. Elmer liked something called Mike's Pride. "Atta baby," he cried. "You got your stuff today!"

Heavyweight Title Match to be Held In Chicago June 22nd

"I knocked Joe Louis down three times. I am sure I will not only knock Ezzard Charles down, but I will knock him OUT and win the world's heavyweight championship when we meet in that White Sox Ball park, June 22."

That's what Jersey Joe Walcott said while he sat on the rubbing table after a brisk workout in his training quarters at the beautiful Peaceful Valley Country Club, just outside of Mokena, Illinois.

Walcott continued, "I don't want folks to think that I have too much mouth when I talk that way, but I am just sure I am going to win the championship. I think ninety percent of fight fans who saw me fight Louis the first time think I won. Louis, himself, acted as if I had won, when he started to leave the ring before the decision was made and had to be held back by his manager. That was really an admission of defeat. Every one who listened to that fight on the radio or saw it on television thought I won. About the only people who thought I didn't win, were the two judges and they were the votes that counted."

Walcott continued talking, as his faithful trainer Joey Allen vigorously rubbed him. Jersey Joe said, "Well, let's forget the Louis fight. I saw Charles fight a couple of times and I don't fear him. He don't punch like Louis. I can wade into him and don't have to be afraid of being hit with an atomic bomb, the kind that Louis throws. Charles only tosses cream puffs and they won't hurt me. I had two chances at the title and this time I'm going to win."

Charles who is training at the Sunset Hills Golf and Country Club, just outside of Kankakee, Illinois, was more reserved in his prediction of the outcome of the fight but his manager Jake Mintz, a man of a few words, (a few million) did really pop off. Charles said, "I have only lost four fights in eight years and I think I can beat Walcott with Joe Louis. I'll be in there trying; I will give the best that is in me."

Mintz said, "Walcott will be a cinch. I think he's a glorified bum. Walcott will see more speed and more left hand punches than he ever looked at in his life. Charles will not only win, but knock him out; I think he will out Walcott to ribbons with his left hook and left jab just as he did Joe Baksi. I have the new world's heavyweight champion and when he wins the title, he will be a credit to the game just like Joe Louis was."

Promoter Joe Louis has announced that over $150,000 worth of tickets for the fight have been sold up to date and that he is confident that the gross gate receipts of the fight will be $350,000 or more. Stars of stage, screen and radio will be there—all friends of Louis and all anxious to see his first heavyweight championship fight a big success.

Among those coming from Hollywood are: Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Jack Benny, Al Jolson, Jimmy Durante, Lana Turner, and Lena Horne to mention only a few.

Tickets for the fight are on sale at the box office of the International Boxing Club, in Chicago Stadium, located at 1838 W. Madison St., Chicago. The prices are: $22.75; $16.25; $9.75; $6.50; and $3.25. The last named ticket is general admission and will be sold the night of the fight. Mail orders for tickets are accepted when accompanied by certified checks or postal money orders.

How to Dispose of Flourescent Bulbs

If you accidentally break a fluorescent lighting tube, be very careful how you dispose of it.

This warning was given Illinois farmers by F. W. Andrew, farm electrical engineer, Illinois College of Agriculture. The danger lies in the poisonous beryllium salts which have been used in the manufacture of the bulbs, Andrew said.

Cuts caused by the sharp edge of a broken fluorescent light are likely to be hard to heal and are open to infection. There is also much danger in breathing any of the beryllium dust which may be in the air after the bulb is broken, he pointed out.

In case one of the bulbs breaks when you are near, quickly leave the room or area until any dust has had a chance to settle. Then wear heavy gloves if you pick up the pieces, or carefully sweep the broken glass into a container which may be covered and disposed of.

Worn out tubes may be safely taken care of by crushing them in a wet burlap sack with a hammer. Then bury the entire contents. Take particular pains to see that children do not use discarded fluorescent lamps for play-things, since they may be accidentally broken.

Manufacturers of fluorescent tubes have agreed to stop using beryllium phosphor salts in their lamps in the future, but that will not reduce the hazard of infectious cuts until the lamps in use at present are gone.

The proportion of the American population that graduated from college trebled between the two world wars, rising from 1.2 percent to 3.6 percent.

"But it's true."

Fred and I figured it out last night."

"Imagine, having all the hot water you want, whenever you want it, for only eight cents a day! Helen, it doesn't seem possible. Why, just think, having an automatic GAS water heater costs less than a cake of soap!"

"I know it. Automatic water heating is really a bargain in convenience, too. I never have to worry about turning the heater off or on, or running out of hot water in the middle of a big laundry. Remember how I always used to plan my hot water uses so there'd be sure to be enough?"

"Remember? We're still doing it! But not for long, after I tell Bob how economical it is having an automatic GAS water heater."

"You know, we've moved around so much we've had almost every kind of water heating system there is... but if we ever move again, we're going to make sure we have an automatic GAS water heater."

"I can't get over it... having all the hot water you want sounds so luxurious."

"Well, it's not a luxury any more... not when it costs only 8c a day!"

Why Jesus Died

Lesson for June 12, 1949

THE FACTS of Jesus' death were simple. They are told in the four Gospels without dramatics and without tears. Yet the drama is there, stark and terrible; and only the hard of heart can read it without tears.

There is a deeper question than what happened. Why did it happen? The first Christians were forced to think about the crucifixion. They all knew it was no legend. It was so. But they were hunted, as we are, with the question, Why? Here was a person whose teaching was truth, whose touch was health, whose life was love. You would have thought the world would welcome such a man, and give him the highest honors in its power. But instead, all it had for him were nails and thorns and a cross. Why? If God, who sees all things, knew that even his Son would come to no better end than a death of shame, why did God allow Jesus to be born, much less send him into the world, the world where the cross was waiting?

Dr. Foreman

No Other End

THERE WAS, of course, "historical reasons" why Jesus was killed. If we used the words "murdered" or "lynched" it would be nearer the truth. Jesus' death, from one point of view, was both a tragedy and a crime, and the Gospel stories show this. Jesus died because Pilate was a spineless man.

Jesus died because the priests of Jerusalem saw that if this man won, they would lose, and they would commit murder rather than be defeated. Jesus died because the Pharisees had closed minds and would not listen to truth if they did not think of it first.

He died because Judas was a traitor, because his friends were cowards and even the best of them dared to show their faces only after he was dead. He died because the Jewish people had their minds set on one sort of Messiah, and when Jesus turned out to be quite another sort, they would have none of him. Being altogether the sort of person he was, in that kind of world, at that particular time and place, you could say, as Jesus himself did, that the Son of Man "had to" die. (Luke 24:26.) No other end was possible. There was no help for it . . . except to turn coward and hide; and if he had been capable of that, he would not have been the Christ we know at all.

The Plan of God

THEN WAS Jesus simply a victim of circumstances? Was he no better than a fly caught in fate's dark web? Far from it. The Christian church has always believed, even before these stories of the crucifixion were ever written, that the death of Christ was in the plan of God. In fact, it is at the heart of God's plan for mankind.

It is by the death of Christ that God reconciles man and brings men back to himself. The Christian church believes and teaches that Christ died for us, that is, for you and for me. We believe that this was not simply Jesus' own idea, something God had not thought of till Jesus suggested it.

We believe that this was the intention of God "from before the foundation of the world." The God who is over all, works through all things, even very evil things, to make his love known.

"That The World . . . Might Be Saved"

MEN had long thought of God as living in far-off heaven, seated on a throne, high and lifted up. A just and mighty God, one who cannot be touched with any human weakness, a holy and infinite Lord of the universe,—such a God men knew. But on earth there walks and suffers a race of men who are slaves of sin, slaves to evil. How can such a God help such men? Not by staying on his throne and hurling down more curses. Only by doing what men would never have guessed God would dare to do—come into this world, himself as a man, translating himself into the life of man; putting his shoulder under the human load, even bearing "our sins in his own body on the tree" (I Peter 2:24).

You Figure It Out

At a time when many people talk almost glibly of the possibility of a third world war, it is wise to attempt to assess the cost of the last conflict. Nothing resembling an exact accounting can be made—there are too many imponderables and intangibles, which permit of only an informed guess. One of the most thoughtful efforts to arrive at the cost of World War II appears in Harper's Magazine for April. It is written by C. Hartley Grattan, who has long been a student of the economic implications of war.

Mr. Grattan concludes that about 10,000,000 members of armed forces lost their lives. The last war was unique in that civilians suffered a heavier mortality than did men in uniform. The casualties from bombing; the planned extermination of whole categories of civilians; the terrible death rate among slave laborers; the losses in underground movements—these and other causes probably were responsible for 30,000,000 deaths. Thus, the total human cost of the war was 40,000,000.

To total the material cost brings the analyst to extremely difficult ground. The most obvious and easily-unearthed cost is the money actually spent for military purposes by victor and vanquished. This is recorded in national budgets. It came to more than a trillion dollars—$1,117,000,000,000. Next we must arrive at the cost of the physical damage which was done during the long course of the conflict. Factories, power plants, transportation systems and whole industrial regions were razed on a wholesale scale. Both sides concentrated on attacking dwelling areas—people who have no place to live especially in severe weather, are of small value as workers. Mr.

Grattan arrives at the figure of $2,234,000,000,000 (over 2 trillion) to cover the cost of direct destruction.

But this is not all. There is another economic cost, which is the most difficult yet to estimate. That cost is found in the depletion of natural resources, the disorganization of economic systems, the value of labor and material seized and carted off by invaders, and so on. Mr. Grattan places this cost at $650,000,000,000. Adding all the costs up, we have a final, incredible figure of four trillion dollars—$4,000,000,000,000! And this, as he says, leaves out the moral cost of war, which is beyond statistics.

World War II was seven times as destructive as World War I. If World War III should come with the atom bomb there is every reason to believe that the costs would be beyond calculation and civilization wiped out.

Here is why the best minds in the world are now devoted to the task of maintaining the peace.

State Rural Youth Camp Opens July 31

Plans are being formulated for the state rural youth camp at the 4-H Memorial Camp near Monticello from July 31 to August 6.

It is expected that more than 150 rural youths from all sections of the state will attend the camp. Last year there were 125 of the older young people present for the week's outing.

To make up the schedule and program for the camp this year, a new Illinois Rural Youth Camp Planning committee has been appointed, according to Claretta Walker and Curt Kenyon, state rural youth specialists at the Illinois College of Agriculture. This committee is composed of eight members of the Rural Youth Camp Continuation committee.

Reduce your feed-harvesting costs . . . take the labor-saving short-cut by preparing silage with a field-proved John Deere Forage Harvester. Equipped with an efficient windrow pick-up attachment, the John Deere becomes a dependable hay chopper for chopping green or field-cured hay. With the fully-proved, row-crop attachment, it converts to a one-man ensilage harvester—to make ensilage from standing row-crops.

The harvester is simple in construction

FARM OUTLOOK

Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics
University of Illinois College of Agriculture

Some people have been waiting for prices to come down before buying a new car. To be sure, there have been some price cuts in recent months, but most popular cars still cost about twice as much as they did before the war.

Auto Prices Lower? Manufacturers would like to reduce prices more, but they cannot cut them below the cost of production and stay in business. The biggest item of manufacturing cost is labor. The simplest way of reducing cost is to increase output without hiring more men.

But some labor union leaders object to such speed-up. Several automobile manufacturers are having disputes with labor now over speed-up. These disputes have come to a showdown in the strike at the Ford Motor Co. The outcome of this strike will tell us something about future trends in costs of production and prices of automobiles and other manufactured products. Personally I don't expect to see cars or other manufactured products ever come back down to anything like prewar levels.

Egg Price Support. The Department of Agriculture expects to support egg prices at 35 cents a dozen through June. The price support program for eggs works like this: The USDA will buy dried eggs at specified prices from vendors who certify that they have paid at least 35 cents a dozen to producers. Of course, this won't prevent some sales from being made for less than the support price.

Potato Trouble. At least one farmer has got into trouble because of the two-price system for potatoes. Arthur Wiese of Hawthorne, Wisconsin, has been sentenced to six months in prison. According to the charges he bought potatoes from the government for 25 cents a bushel and sold them for $2.00. He sold potatoes for food when government regulations called for feeding them to cattle.

Where Our Money Goes. During the last week of April the government bought 986 carloads of 1948 potatoes to support prices. We have no good use for these potatoes. They should never have been produced if the government had not promised to support prices at very profitable levels.

Rise in Land Prices Checked. The latest USDA report on farmland prices shown downward trends in some states, upward trends in others. However, the decreases outweighed the increases. Consequently, for the country as a whole, prices showed a very slight drop. Prices for the four months ending with March averaged one percent lower than in the preceding four-month period.

Illinois Prices Up—USDA. On the same basis of comparison, prices of Illinois farmland showed an increase of two percent. This increase placed Illinois farmland values five percent higher than they were a year earlier. The increase since 1935-39 has been 131 percent.

Be Careful of 2,4-D

2,4-D can do plenty of damage if used carelessly. University of Illinois agronomists reminded farmers today that the slightest trace of 2,4-D will kill some plants. With other plants, you can't put on enough to hurt them at all.

2,4-D has proved most useful in killing broad-leaved weeds like wild mustard, cocklebur and ragweed. But it will kill or severely injure other broad leaved plants, including nearly all legumes, most vegetables, garden flowers and shrubbery, and soybeans.

If you use 2,4-D close to susceptible plants, spray or dust with care. And do it when there's little or no wind. Take special care to protect sensitive crops from the drifting chemical. In fact, protect them even from the fumes of 2,4-D.

That Brannan Plan

The draft of a bill to authorize the new farm price support program proposed by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has just been sent to Congress and by the time you read these words it is possible that bills will have been introduced.

The past several weeks have brought torrents of testimony, comment and analyses of the Brannan proposal and for the most part these spokesmen have thrown cold water upon the plan. It has been widely described as costly, impractical and a plan to regiment the nation's agriculture and leave it dependent upon annual congressional appropriations. AFBF has steadfastly declared that American farmers prefer to work out their problems via the Agricultural Act of 1946 which is scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1, 1950.

It seems evident that the House Agriculture Committee is not overly enthusiastic about the Brannan Plan after listening to a long parade of witnesses. Sentiment of the Senate Committee hasn't been developed but, in unofficial comment, various members of that group strongly oppose the plan.

A pleasant evening was enjoyed with games, refreshments and gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wheeler were entertained at a dinner in honor of her birthday Saturday May 28, by the Jack Millers in Hinsdale.

Boom Not Sought, Brake On Decline

WASHINGTON—Administration economists do not seek another boom but hope the decline can be held within narrow limits. They want the economy stabilized moderately below present levels and well above pre-war, so the Government can collect the huge revenue needed for current expenses and interest on the nation's $251,700,000,000 debt, according to Pathfinder news magazine.

The slow, gradual downturn seems to be working well, in the opinion of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Their criteria: 1, readjustments are being made without signs of "snow-balling" or of panic; 2, moderate price cuts are coupled with mild lowerings of corporate profit margins and earnings; 3, good steady returns are in prospect for the long run.

New Compound Used To Treat Arthritis

WASHINGTON—Rheumatoid arthritis is a vicious joint ailment which cripples and agonizes millions of people and for which there has been no effective treatment, points out Pathfinder magazine.

Last fortnight, a research group at Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., announced that they have one: "Compound E", a substance allied to sex hormones, and found on the skin of the adrenal glands. It is now being made synthetically, in minute quantities, for further testing.

So far, Compound E has been tried on 15 typical but extreme cases, with some spectacular results. Bedridden patients, to whom the slightest touch or motion has meant pain, have been enabled to dance, climb stairs, return to work. Like insulin, it appears that "E" must be taken continually to maintain its effect.

U. S. Finds Older Workers Offer More to Industry

How does industry's experience with workers 45 and over compare with the younger age groups? The bureau of labor statistics has some interesting answers as a result of a detailed study of the work records of 17,800 employees working in 109 manufacturing plants at a great variety of occupations, most of them productive.

The survey found that workers in the older age group experienced fewer injuries per million man hours worked than those between 20 and 44. Furthermore, workers over 45 were steadier on the job and less likely to be absent as frequently as young workers. The highest absentee rate was found among teen-age employees.

In addition to offering more highly developed skills and more mature judgment, the older worker tends to be more settled in his work and social habits.

The only disadvantage of older workers, it was found, was that once injured their disabilities last longer, reflecting lower recuperative powers. Injured workers between 45 and 59 lost from 16 to 19 days per disability as against 6½ to 9 days for the 30-39 group.

Removing Difficult Stains

Fortunately most inks are washable. A good soap sudsing in warm water is all that's necessary to remove ink stains from clothing. Occasionally, however, you may have to apply vinegar or lemon juice. If clothes are white, bleach remaining stains with hydrogen peroxide. With colored clothes, sponge clothes with warm glycerin and let stand for 30 minutes. Rinse well. Most candy stains will wash right out. Chocolate is the only one that is a little difficult to remove. After washing the garment in luke-warm water, use hydrogen peroxide to remove the balance of the stain. Rinse well. If the stain is on a coat or jacket that can't be washed, sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

If Canada Can . . .

Canada's recent announcement of worth-while reductions in taxes, accompanied by substantial cuts in its public debt, is convincing evidence of what can be accomplished in Governmental economy if the desire to effect economies is sincere. Canada's financial housekeeping is in striking contrast to our own, with the Administration seeking to add $4,000,000,000 in Federal taxes on top of the already burdensome load now borne by the American people, says Graham Patterson, publisher, Pathfinder news magazine.

Our northern neighbor's new tax program includes reductions in both personal income and corporation taxes and as well, the elimination or lowering of taxes on a wide range of consumer products. A little of the Canadian kind of realistic thinking would be beneficial in Washington.

Higher taxes here could upset the delicately balanced U. S. economy, especially now when economic currents indicate a leveling-off of the unprecedented postwar prosperity and employment. For the extraction of more billions of dollars from Americans' incomes would reduce their purchasing power and thus make difficult the maintenance of full production and employment.

Instead of raising taxes to avoid a budget deficit, it would seem more sensible—and certainly safer—for the Government to reduce its spending. The Hoover Commission has pointed the way, with specific recommendations that would not only save $2,000,000,000 in our cost of Government but would also achieve greater efficiency. But will anything be done about correcting the waste and duplication of work in our Federal Government? Isn't it more business like, and more honest, to save the billions now spent unnecessarily than to make the taxpayers pay still higher taxes?
